Descendants of Charles\textsuperscript{2} Maybury

We believe that Charles\textsuperscript{2} Mabry was born about 1693/94 in Henrico County, Virginia, a son of Francis Maybury and Elizabeth Gilliam. While no record of Charles Maybury’s marriage has been found, we do know from other records, including his will, that his wife’s name was Rebecca\textsuperscript{1}. Records of the Loftin family say that Rebecca Loftin married Charles Mabry. Furthermore, Rebecca Loftin was a daughter of Cornelius Loftin (1675-1735). This Cornelius Loftin was the son of an older Cornelius Loftin (1632-1686). This provides us with additional circumstantial evidence that the wife of Charles Mabry was Rebecca Loftin, since Charles and Rebecca had a son, Cornelius, a name otherwise not known in the Mabry family.

When Elizabeth Maybury wrote her will in June 1713, she named her two youngest sons, Charles and Hinchia to be her executors. Both were probably still living at home with her. Charles was not much beyond the age of majority when he went into Surry County Court with the inventory of his mother’s estate on 21 March 1715.

On 16 March 1749 Charles\textsuperscript{2} Mabry wrote his will, naming his sons: Charles, Jr., Francis, William, Ebill (Abel), Cornelius; and his daughters: Elizabeth, Rebecca, Emidia, Mary Battle and another not named. His executors were his wife, Rebecca and his sons, William and Charles.\textsuperscript{2}

Their son, Thomas J., is said to have been one of nine children. Ten are listed below, all of whom are shown in either the 1850 or 1860 census except the two eldest. It seems likely that Susan (1850 census) is the same as Martha (1860 census). Jane, b ca 1847 appears to have died between 1850 and 1860. This would leave 9 who lived maturity, which could explain the tradition of nine children.

Cletis Ellinghouse, who has done extensive work on this branch of the Mabry family and published America: The Mabr(e)y Experience, states that Frederick (Abel, Charles, Francis) went to Missouri and by his second marriage to a cousin, Nancy Mabry, had sons Pinckney, Randolph,
Thomas, Ezekiel, William and James. Ellinghouse states that this Frederick was in Williamson County Tennessee in 1830. However, the Frederick Mabry in Williamson County Tennessee in 1830 is much too young to be Frederick\(^4\). Frederick\(^4\) (Abel, Charles, Francis) lived in Wilkes County North Carolina until sometime after 1820 when he moved to Overton County Tennessee where he died between 1830 and 1840. The younger Frederick Mabry in Williamson County Tennessee in 1830 was the father of the six sons named above. But he was almost certainly the son of Cornelius\(^4\) (Cornelius, Charles, Francis). This younger Frederick was living in Williamson County very near Ezekiel\(^5\) Mabry (Philip\(^4\), Cornelius, Charles, Francis). Frederick’s wife, Nancy Mabry was the sister of Ezekiel. The other persons in the household of Ezekiel were a younger brother (probably Philip who married Mary Wren in Williamson County in 1833) and their mother, the widow of Philip\(^4\), who died in Rockingham County North Carolina in 1817. Thus Frederick and his wife, Nancy, were first cousins.
